Hotel De Lille – Paris

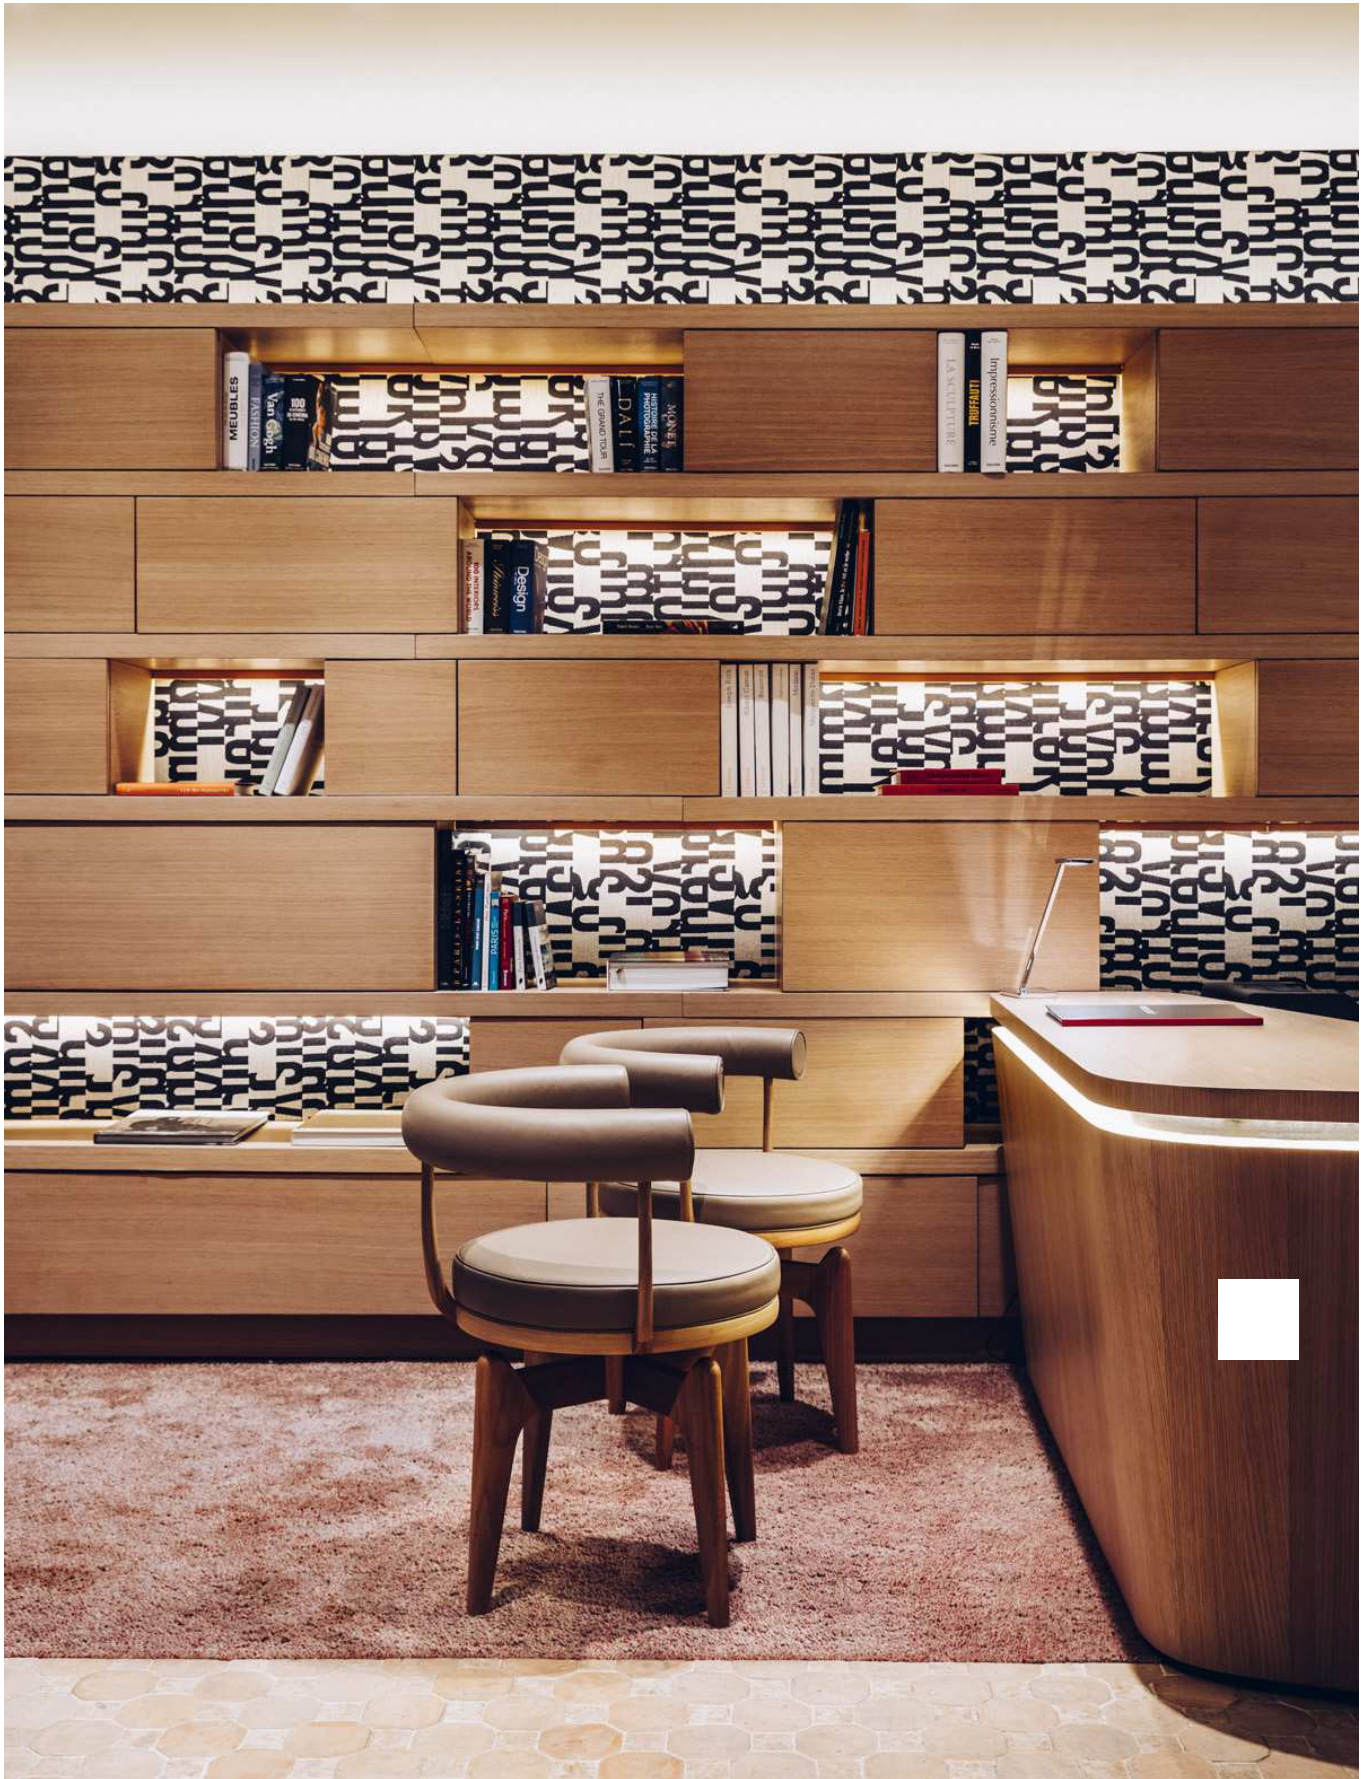

The boutique hotel is situated in the artistic pulse of Faubourg Saint-Germain on a tranquil road on the Rive Gauche. Hotel De Lille is formerly known in the 19th century to host many writers and artist at that time. In 2016, the architect Jean-Luc Bras, chose to rethink the hotel in relation to its history thus he chose to capture the soul of the place and design each room to immerse you into the intellect and artist at the time. In the room dedicated to Françoise Sagan, for example, a display case houses the typewriter on which Hermes baby green "the charming little monster", as called Mauriac, tapped the pages of his most famous novels.
